The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has finally settled a controversy over an insurance plan for county employees.

The employees were insured with Washington National, had a $300 deductible and PCS

About 50 people attended the meeting, called to allow the supervisors and their employees to discuss the insurance changes after discontent with the change became apparent. About a half-dozen of them were

The board currently pays $138 per month for each employee's insurance, with employees who want dependent coverage paying an additional $150. Deductible is $300.

Walker said that when the new policy is effective May 1, the county will pay $141 per employee per month. Family coverage with Blue Cross will cost about $10 more.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

What did you do Jesus today?

When is the last time that you passed someone by and did not want to make an effort to say hello or otherwise acknowledge the fellow human being? That was the last time you ignored Jesus and refused to give him the time of day.

In a singular exchange recorded in chapter 25 of the gospel of Matthew, Jesus concluded a lifetime of "taking the form of a slave" (Phil. 2: 7), identifying himself utterly with the human race and with each human being.

He bonded himself so intimately with every one of us that he warned us that we do him everything which we do any person anywhere on earth.

As you made your way through this day, did you look down at the unfortunates whom you passed on the street? Did you turn up your nose or twist your face in disdain for the never-do-wells who persisted in pursuing parasitic lives? If you did, then you looked down at Jesus and turned up your nose at him.

On the other hand, if you accorded each of the homeless and/or shiftless the acknowledgement of human dignity and the greeting of human fellowship, you acknowledged Jesus in his dignity and in his common bond of humanity with you.

How many times did you drop a little gossip about someone today? Maybe it was light, or perhaps it was heavy and malicious scuttlebutt.

Whatever, gossip is never done for the benefit of the person who is its object, but rather for that person's harm and disadvantage. Make no mistake; you gossiped about Jesus.

Even worse than the evils of gossip as a form of entertainment and morbid or sinful glee, did today find you indulging in the deadly practice of character assassination, of slander, of attacking someone's reputation with deadly intent? To whatever extent you engages in these terrible pursuits, you hacked Jesus.

Contrariwise, as often as you had good things to say about someone, or at least beneficial or corrective things, you spoke well of and you benefited Jesus himself.

Did you get over on someone today, cheating her/him of a few ounces on the scale, rushing a sale at a fraction of the real value in order that you could make a killing on resale, and seeking out ways and means to beat others out of their money? If you did, you cheated Jesus and deprived him of what was his.

Conversely, as often as you tried your best to do justice to each person, to give a pound for a pound and a penny for a penny, you gave Jesus his due in the same measure.

Beware, if you looked askance at certain people because they were of a different race, ethnic group, background or nationality.

You would do well to recall that Jesus himself came from an oft-despised ethnic group, and that you put him down whenever you brand as inferior or spurn anyone of another color or culture.

You might be tempted to think that you are offending no one else when you have so little sensitivity, feeling or time for the crippled, the sickly, the feeble in body or mind, and the aged. Not so. Jesus assures us in the strongest terms that you are offending him as much as you are offending them.

On the contrary, when you are alive to the feelings, the hurts and the problems of the halt, the sickly, the feeble and the old, you are alive to everything in and about Jesus.

There is nothing positive or negative, helpful or harmful, beautiful or ugly, pleasant or painful, for better or for worse, which you do to anyone, anywhere, without doing it also to Jesus.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The month of May will be here in a couple of days and I know there are a lot of students and teachers who are happy to see the school year about to end.

On the other hand, there are parents who would like to see school continue throughout the summer months.

The nearing of the end of a school year means many of our youngsters will be involved in baseball and softball.

Some will be walking and others riding their bikes to the parks.

This is the time of year for motorists to be extremely careful, especially in ball park areas.

Police patrol these areas, but there are not enough of them to be at every park at all times.

I would like to see Hancock County go through this summer without an accident involving one of our young people.

Children who ride bikes should be instructed about the "rules of the road" by their parents.

Nothing disturbs me more than to approach three or four bike riders and then have some split to each side of the road.

This happens to me quiet frequently in the area. I wish all of the ball players and spectators will have a good, safe and happy summer.

I guess it is time for me to once again get on the "soap box" about "one-eyed" vehicles in the area.

It seems that every time I travel at night I come across one or two vehicles with only one headlight operational.

The drivers of these vehicles should realize they are breaking the law with only one headlight, not to mention the danger they cause on our roadways.

One of the worst places to meet one of these "one-eyed" vehicles is on Highway 603.

I hope everyone will check their headlights as many times a piece of gravel will bounce up and knock out a headlight.

Motorists are responsible for keeping their vehicles in a safe operating condition.

Congratulations to Davy Anderson of Sellers community on being named the state's first place winner in the welding division of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America in Jackson.

Anderson is a Hancock North Central senior and a second-year student at the Pearl River/Hancock County Vo-Tech Center.

Anderson and his instructor John Cranmer will be journeying to Tulsa, Okla. in June to represent Mississippi in the national competition.

I wish Davy the best of luck at the national contest and I know his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Anderson, must be very proud of their son's accomplishments.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi
Economic Council

A breath of fresh air

The Legislature, responding to the urgent cries for environmental relief, has enacted a far-reaching bill designed to help solve the state's growing hazardous waste crisis.

The legislation provides encouragement for private sector investment in hazardous waste management facilities in the state. It offers a million-dollar incentive for a community volunteering to accept a hazardous waste facility.

Additionally legislators established procedures for development of state-owned and-operated waste management facilities in the event private facilities are not created in the state.

The reason for the crisis: Mississippi has no acceptable hazardous waste management facility, and other states are closing their doors to waste materials traditionally shipped from Mississippi to their facilities.

Some 1,000 Mississippi businesses generate hazardous waste products in their operations, and all were facing a waste management dead-end—and potential closing or severe cutbacks in their operations.

So, the action of the 1990 Legislature is like a breath of fresh air for Mississippi.

Vo-tech plays important role

When you mention the words vo-tech education, you turn off some people because they are not really aware of its important role in society today.

A number of students from Bay Senior High, Hancock North Central and several from St. Stanislaus attend the Pearl River Community College/Hancock County Vo-Tech Center located at the Stennis Airpark.

The high school students attend academic classes at their regular school, usually for half a day, in addition to taking vo-tech classes for the balance of the day.

Educational opportunities for high school students are not the only ones offered at the local vo-tech.

The general public has a large number of classes offered, mostly at night on twice-a-week basis. These classes give residents and opportunity of brushing up on an old skill or learning a new one.

For students there are six basic programs offered, metal trades, welding, electricity/electronics, auto mechanics, building trades and drafting/industry.

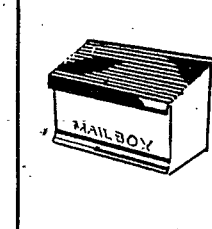

In addition to the six basic courses, all types of skills in the secretarial field are offered to the general public.

Another service offered at the Hancock Vo-tech Center on a regular basis is GED testing.

Al Bourgeois, director, reports the vo-tech facility is ready to help in the educational field with just about any subject, as long as there are enough folks interested.

If you have been out of school for a short or long time and are interested in increasing your skills, give Bourgeois a call at 467-3568, between the hours of 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Our local vo-tech could be of big help to you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Harbor Drive 'garbage dump' controversy arouses residents

Dear Editor,

A recent letter written in last Thursday edition of the Echo was grossly inaccurate in its facts. A person by the name of Jacqueline Pecoraro wrote the letter.

We, the people, actually wanted the garbage dumpster in our neighborhood because we were simply tired of people coming from other local areas, namely Shoreline Park and BaySide Park dumping all sorts of garbage down the sparsely populated roads of the Bayou Phillips and Bayou La Croix areas.

In turn we had to petition our supervisor to get these garbage dumpsters to prevent our entire neighborhood from becoming a garbage dump.

It is true that sometimes the dumpsters become full from the use of other commercial garbage services businesses as well as residents from other areas.

But the county employees and many neighborhood residents usually do a very good job keeping the area clean and safe. One solution to this problem would be to make other garbage pickup service and commercial businesses not use the neighborhood dumpsters but to have to pay for their own dumpster service.

The area where our dumpsters are located is the only public area in our neighborhood where the dumpsters could be legally located. It was never a picnic area, although it could have made a nice one if only funds were available. The boat launch could use some repairs also.

We, the people of Bayou Phillips and Bayou La Croix Estates, are for the dumpsters that are a great asset in keeping our area as a whole much cleaner and safer than it was before. We also appreciate the cooperation of many local residents and county employees in helping maintain a cleaner and safer environment for our children to grow up in.

Contrary to what Ms. Pecoraro might have you believe, the large majority of residents are grossly insulted by being called slob when we work so hard to better our neighborhood. Below is a list of signatures of local residents who support this letter:

—Martin DeSalvo, Deborah DeSalvo, Chris Vosbin, Debbie Vosbin, Tracy Favaloro, Shantel DeSalvo, Jerry Kennedy Sr., Dianne Kennedy, Ronda Kennedy, Jerry Kennedy Jr., John Favaloro Sr., A. J. Favaloro, Mrs. A. J. Favaloro, Rene A. Tanguis, Warren E. Jack

Volunteer fire fighters deserve recognition

To the Editor:

I noticed in Thursday's Echo a picture of the East Hancock Fire Department's new pump, fire commissioners and the county fire marshal.

I also noticed, however, that the picture and story seem to be somewhat incomplete!

While administrative and bookkeeping personnel are a necessary part of any fire department, paid or volunteer, I think that it is time, for once, to acknowledge the people who make the volunteer fire service what it is.

1. The bosses, who allow their employees time off during working hours to fight fires and attend training.

2. The families, who put up with late meals, cancelled activities and sleepless nights while waiting for their fire fighters' safe return.

3. The volunteer fire fighters, men and women who leave their families and jobs, at all hours of the day and night, to help and protect the citizens of their community.

These people, using their time, gas and money put their lives on the line every day for no pay and little recognition.

In the story mentioned, I see not one combat fire fighter in the photo, not one combat fire fighter's name on the dedication plaque, not one combat fire fighter mentioned aware in the story.

Tying up loose ends isn't easy

Clearing up unfinished projects can be difficult at times. In the summer, it seems to be even harder because there are so many many distractions outdoors. That's especially true down here on the Gulf Coast, where just the scenery is a major distraction.

I can give a good example of this—on one of my recent days off, I had business in Long Beach during the afternoon. On that same day, I had one of my night classes at University of Southern Mississippi's Gulf Park Campus, also in Long Beach.

When I attended the university's main campus in Hattiesburg in the early 1980s, I used to get tired of the racket in the dorm, take a book outside and climb into an oak tree to read. USM on the coast has the Friendship Oak, a wonderful old tree with a platform in it and a view of the gulf.

Trying to kill an hour of homework in that particular tree, I found the beauty of the place so distracting I had to go indoors to get anything done.

By now, many people who read The Sea Coast Echo have heard that I'm leaving the paper. Getting my first master's degree, which I will receive May 11, has taken me nearly six years. By cutting back to part-time work, I now have a chance to get a second master's in only one year.

The biggest problem with doing this is tying up the loose ends at the newspaper.

There is a lot of unfinished business, and the idea of having only one week left to complete it comes just short of scaring the daylight out of me and anybody else.

I know how to go about doing it, but I'm not really motivated because right now I want to look at beginnings, not endings. In newspaper work, it's not a really great idea to leave a lot of loose ends hanging around anyway because there are so many new projects just screaming to be started.

Ideally, a reporter should be able to do one project, such as conduct an interview or attend an event; come back and write about it the same day or at least the following morning; publish it in the next issue and be done with it.

Even if something does have to be shoved to the side because it isn't dated and something else is, the undated material shouldn't have to wait more than one issue, or two at the most, for publication.

But, everybody knows who rules a newspaper office. It's not the publisher, the general manager, the editor or even the press operator—it's a guy named Murphy, as in Murphy's Law. As usual, where Murphy rules, nothing works out the way it's supposed to work.

Also, news is reported as it happens, and some things simply don't happen in a day. On my first newspaper job, I was assigned what became for me a very special story on Sept. 12, 1982. At first it didn't seem like much more than a fire call, one that wasn't even in the paper's main circulation area.

That was the night Taylorsville High School was destroyed in a fire set by a woman who was later tried for arson and was sent to the mental hospital at Whitfield, where testimony revealed that she had already been a patient several times. The fire discovered at about 8 p.m., was still burning when a photographer picked me up to go out there, and was finally put out the next day after a 4 a.m. rekindle.

That story didn't end for me or any of the other people involved until January of 1984, when the students who attended school in morning and afternoon shifts right after the fire and then took classes conducted in borrowed trailers were finally able to use the new Taylorsville High School building.

It was a funny thing, too, when I wrote the little four-inch story about the opening of the new building—I felt as if something important had been completed.

I can gather up all my notes in the week I have left here and finish writing things I had started on, which is one way of tying up loose ends. I may even be able to ignore the beautiful weather outside in order to get everything done.

There will still be uncompleted work, though. There are things out there very similar to my Taylorsville High project; it will be years before they're finished happening.

I may not get to be the one who writes the endings of those stories, but there are many beginnings I'll be able to remember. And I hope all of the endings are as happy as the one in the Taylorsville High story.

As a professional fire fighter for almost 15 years, I know most of the East Hancock Fire Fighters personally. Most are professional fire fighters with local paid departments, who do not live in the area served by the East Hancock Department, but who give freely of their time, money and energies to help protect the people in their county.

I think it is a slap in the face to all these men and women to be ignored in the manner this article seems to do.

How about it, editors and commissioners?

How about a little recognition for the people who get dirty and put their lives on the line for your community?

Sincerely,

Economic sanctions should be enforced without bias

To the Editor:

We have imposed economic sanctions on South Africa, to try to force them to see things our way. We have not imposed sanctions on China for the massacre of the students. We have not imposed sanctions on Soviet Russia for their failure to allow the dissident republics to secede.

Do you see here signs of a double standard?

Could it have something to do with the greater clout of China and Russia? And the lesser clout of South Africa?

Politicians' gifts are never free

Dear Editor:

Beware of politicians bearing gifts!

Those gifts always come with a price...new taxes.

President Reagan gave us an income tax cut, then caused higher state and local taxes by shifting the cost of services like Medicaid and others to state treasuries.

At the same time, his administration spent so much more, we now pay $1,000,000 a minute interest on the National Debt.

Congress passed a new Minimum Wage Bill. The first stage increase of 45 cents an hour went into effect April 1. While a relatively few employees received pay hikes, everyone will pay higher prices from inflation. Already McDonald's raised prices 5 to 10 percent, so have others.

This bill was great press for Congress but won't solve a single problem. It's merely a gimmick to collect more IRS taxes for Congress to spend...or waste.

And now Gov. Mabus got BEST from the Legislature, but no money; however session for funding comes up in June. "No new taxes," proclaims Gov. Mabus...perhaps for the first year.

BEST may be the greatest boon ever for Mississippi or just another reason for a tax increase, only time will tell; but it will never be a free gift!

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

The garden beckons more strongly than the kitchen these Spring days, as shrubs and plants cry out for tending or replacing, and just as I have, I'm sure that you've probably succumbed to the lure of all the brightly blooming plants and seedlings at the nurseries.

But, and there's always a "but" along the path, isn't there?—you still have to put something on the table at meal-times, however hurriedly you've assembled the meal!

So, some of the time I've been turning to the crock pot or cast iron Dutch oven, working in the yard while the meal cooks at its own leisurely pace; or else I've been "zapping" this or that or the other in the microwave or making full use of the saute pan or broiler.

Whether you choose long, slow, almost untended, cooking or quick tossing of meal together, you're sure to find bargains aplenty at our area supermarkets just now.

With artichokes down in price, and quite in good supply, you may wish to steam a few briefly, depending, of course, upon the number of diners, and serve them with melted butter or margarine and generous squeezes of fresh lemon. (The artichokes, not the diners). Or, you may wish to steam, then scrape out the choke and such, leaving the heart, and fill the center of the artichoke with creamed chicken (chicken's a good buy, also, at this time) or oysters or whatever else you choose.

Or, you may "chuck it all" outside for awhile, and give in to that yearning for stuffed artichokes. If you give me a stuffed artichoke you needn't offer me anything else for lunch or dinner or supper or whatever; it's a meal. It's also a delightful appetizer, one or two artichokes serving several nibblers—and fighting over who gets the heart?

I usually place the cooked artichoke in the center of a plate (fortunately I happen to have a couple of white china artichoke plates left from what was a set of six) and sometimes scatter a few of the stuffed leaves on the plate, always with a small dish or bowl of sorts for the discarded leaves.

At times, I add chopped ham or shrimp to the stuffing, at others I just use the tasty stuffing. To simplify things, here's how to stuff one artichoke; increase quantities as needed—but, this one will do quite nicely as a bit of a before-the-meal treat for several. Here's:

STUFFED ARTICHOKE
artichoke
1/2 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1/2 cup grated Romano cheese
4 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1/4 cup olive oil
Pepper, salt to taste

Parsley to your taste
(Sometimes, I steam the artichoke first; at others, I steam artichoke and stuffing together, as in this recipe.) For this, mix together the bread crumbs, cheese, garlic, pepper and salt and parsley. (Rubbing all together with your hands seems to work best!) Cut the top and bottom from the artichoke, turn upside down, and slam down briefly with your hand on the kitchen counter to open up the leaves. (You will probably have to trim the bottom of the artichoke to make it stand up straight.)

Fill each leaf, then pour the oil over the stuffed pieces. Steam, in a covered pot, in a little water for 45 minutes, or a little longer if necessary, until a leaf pulls off easily.

That sugar-sweet yellow corn is piled up on the produce counters, along with fresh pole beans and string beans, ready for speedy cooking and eating. And, there's fresh asparagus and varieties of lettuce and those sweet Vidalia onions, first of the season.

And, while those super-sweet Louisiana strawberries are in good supply, let's make the most of them! A little off the unusual ordinary recipe path, but delicious, is:

CUCUMBER AND FRUIT SALAD
1/2 medium canteloupe
1 medium cucumber, peeled and sliced 1/4-inch thick
1/2 pint strawberries, hulled and sliced 1/4-inch thick
2 Tbsp. lime juice
1 Tbsp. vegetable oil
1/4 tsp. red pepper flakes
2 Tbsp. minced parsley
1/2 tsp. ground coriander (optional)

Make up a cup of the melon balls (with a melon baller) or cut in small chunks, place in a medium-size bowl and add the cucumber and strawberries, tossing together as you go. Stir in the lime juice, oil, pepper flakes and coriander (for extra spiciness if you wish) and toss again. Spoon the mixture over lettuce leaves on a salad plate. (Four servings).

Other good buys this week at our area stores: baking hens (think of all the tasty, easy meals from the leftover chicken) and beef bottom round and chuck roasts (good for next-day and day-after sandwiches or hash or pot pie or whatever) as well as pork chops and such—so get cooking!

Awareness of labeling terms helps shoppers know what to buy

There always has been a need for foods that fulfill special dietary needs. However, the demand for such products has increased significantly, as consumers have come more weight and nutrition conscious.

Accordingly, there has been a dramatic increase in the development of reduced calorie products.

Because these products usually make nutritional claims on the label (e.g., "lite," "sugar-free"), the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) requires that product labeling meet certain regulations.

The following glossary of terms that appear on food labels can help in choosing products that fit special diets of meal plans.

Diabetic foods may be appropriate for people with diabetes. The label must state "Diabetics: This product may be useful in your diet on the advice of a physician."

If the food is not low-calorie or reduced-calorie, the label also must state: "This food is not a reduced-calorie food."

The names of these foods may not include terms like "diabetic" or "for diabetics" and may not claim to be useful in the diabetic diet simply because it is a low-calorie or reduced-calorie food.

Diet or Dietetic foods must comply with either the "low-calorie" or "reduced-calorie" food regulations or regulations for foods used for dietary purposes other than weight control such as formulated meal replacements and foods for low-sodium diets.

Foods used in weight control that contain a non-nutritive sweetener (e.g., saccharin) must declare that fact and the percentage by weight of the non-nutritive ingredient on the label. FDA considers aspartame to be a nutritive sweetener.

Formulated meal replacements are useful in calorie control programs, but are not necessarily low in calories. For example, many diet plan meals contain "regular foods" at controlled portions which intrinsically limit calories.

Also, a variety of "meal replacements" are intended to be consumed in lieu of a meal, helping to control caloric intake.

Light (lite) foods contain less of such substances as fat, sugar or alcohol (in the case of beer or wine), and they are usually lower in calories.

When "light" represents a claim for weight control, these foods are expected to conform with regulations for low or reduced-calorie foods.

Low-calorie foods can claim to be "low-calorie" only if a serving has no more than 40 calories. These foods also must have no more than 0.4 calories per gram (except for sugar substitutes).

The principal display panel, which almost always bears the product's trademark or trade name, also must bear the words "low-calorie," "low in calories" or "a low-calorie food." A food that is naturally low in calories, such as celery, may claim only that it is a "low-calorie food."

Reduced-calorie foods contain at least one-third fewer calories than an equivalent serving of the food for which they substitute.

The label must list the caloric content of a serving of the "reduced-calorie" food and the caloric content of a serving of the food for which it substitutes.

This information must appear on the same panel with nutrition and ingredient information.

Sugar-free or sugarless foods may be labeled "low-calorie" or "reduced-calorie" (if they meet the requirements for those foods).

Sugar-free foods may contain sugar alcohols (e.g., sorbitol, xylitol, mannitol) which have the same calories as sugar (four calories/gram), but may not cause a rapid rise in blood sugar; these foods must state that the product is not for weight control.

Trees prosper when planted with care

The Society of American Foresters is challenging every American to plant just one tree. And to help us do it right, they've published the following information piece:

A tree has got to start someplace.

If it's a tree envisioned for a yard, schoolground, or park, there are steps to take to ensure that the small tree placed in the ground this year will grow to its full potential in the years ahead.

Planting a tree is one thing, but crucial to the tree's survival is planning beforehand, and caring for it afterwards.

Trees are planted for any number of reasons: to provide shade or privacy, enhance bird or other wildlife habitat, frame a vista or view, or simply to present colorful foliage or flowers.

They also reduce air and noise pollution, modify temperatures, and affect water quality and quantity.

A tree obviously gets pretty big, and you need to think of the long term in choosing a species. Both objectives and physical characteristics of a site affect this decision.

Small trees, such as dogwoods and flowering crabapples, rarely grow more than 30 feet. Medium-sized trees, between 30 and 60 feet in height, include birch and honeylocust. Oaks, maples, and tulip poplars, among other species, can grow to more than 60 feet.

In choosing a site and species, you need to look up, look down, and look around.

Utility lines overhead, sidewalks, buildings, and other trees close by; and soil characteristics below, affect the location of your new tree. Your tree's tolerance to shade or exposure must also be taken into account.

PROPER PLANTING

You want your tree to take off with a flurry of activity in its first year of establishment. To accomplish that, it is important that you plant a healthy tree and utilize a planting process that stimulates rapid root regrowth.

To plant your tree, dig a hole twice as wide as the root mass or ball. A wider hole may be necessary if the soil is highly compacted. The hole should be no deeper than the root mass.

Nurseries typically offer trees in three forms: bare root, balled and burlapped, and container grown. In the case of bare root trees, the tap root, when placed in the hole, should be within one inch of the original ground level (though this varies a bit with soil texture and region of the country).

With balled and burlapped and container-grown trees, the top of the dirt ball should be level with, or slightly above the original grade.

Obviously, plastic containers should be removed. It is sometimes necessary to place the tree in the hole and then cut away the sides of the container to avoid braking of a loose root ball.

Experts differ on the need to remove biodegradable packaging material, such as burlap or paper pots. It is an absolute must, in any event, to remove the twine that wraps balled and burlapped plants.

Soil quality is important to your tree's chances of survival. The better the soil, the better the growth. The same soil, if it is of good quality, should be replaced to backfill the hole; otherwise, new topsoil should be used.

Loosely spade the backfill into the hole until full, soak the soil with water, and then, depending on the ground level, add another layer of backfill. Stomping the soil down to keep the tree in place is not recommended. If the soil around the tree is too tight, oxygen and nutrient mass will be impeded.

The area around the tree can be mulched with wood chips, straw or other porous material. Another alternative is not to mulch, but instead to leave a grass-free ring around the tree. Sometimes keeping the area grass-free has been known to double tree growth. In addition, you avoid having a lawnmower bumping into your newly planted tree and bruising it. Lawnmowers and weed eaters are notoriously the bane of yard trees; especially new, tender-barked trees.

PRUNING, FERTILIZING

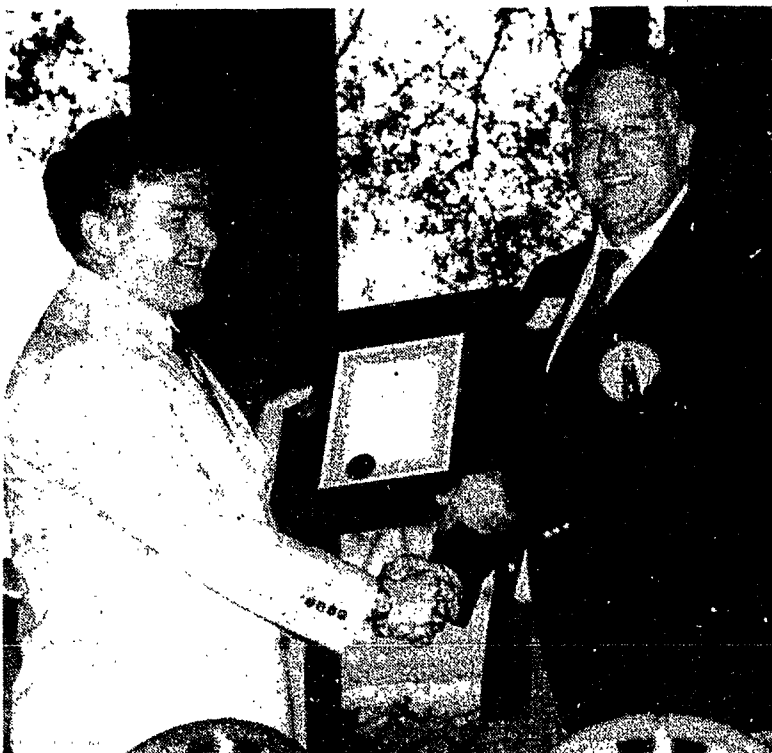

Some trees need to be pruned so that they grow in an attractive shape. Some, especially those planted on a wind-prone site, may also need to be staked and guyed to hold them steady until the roots are well settled.

While it is rarely necessary to fertilize your tree, particularly in the first year, watering your tree is crucial. The "rule of thumb" is to check the soil under the mulch by pinching a chunk of soil with the thumb and forefinger. If it remains intact, displaying fingerprints, wait and check later. If it crumbles, hand water the tree by soaking thoroughly to the depth of the ball.

This may require allowing the garden hose to trickle for several ours at the base of your tree (be sure the water isn't running away from the area). It is better to soak your tree less often with more water, than to water lightly and with greater frequency. Keep your tree's soil moist but not water-logged.

Although the same principles apply, those wishing to plant forests, Christmas tree farms, or other larger areas will probably use machinery to clear the site and do the planting. In addition, in the interests of economy, bare-root seedlings will probably be used.

Most important to your tree's survival is your commitment to care for it. Somebody must be responsible for keeping it watered and otherwise well tended.

WEDDINGS, ENGAGEMENTS

Ainsworth-Ladner

TILSON AINSWORTH AND ANGELA LADNER

The approaching marriage of Angela Marie Ladner to Tilson Earl Ainsworth Jr. is announced by her parents, Mrs. Gwen Shyrou and Jimmie Ladner, both of Hancock County. Mr. Ainsworth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tilson E. Ainsworth Sr. of Rocky Hill community. The bride-elect is a graduate of Hancock North Central and Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College. She is employed with Memorial Hospital in Gulfport. The prospective groom is a graduate of Hancock North Central High School and Pearl River Community College. He is employed with Struthers Corporation in Gulfport. St. Matthew Catholic Church in White Cypress will be the setting for the May 5 marriage at 5 p.m. A reception will follow the ceremony at American Legion Post 58, Highway 603. Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

Carter-Bordages

Shelley Marie Bordages of Waveland became the bride of Larry Daniel Carter Jr., also of Waveland, in an evening exchange of vows April 23 at Waveland Manor Apartments. Judge Lee Klein performed the 6 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of the Reverend and Mrs. Harold Bordages of Wewahatchka, Fla. The groom's parents are Larry D. Carter Sr. of Waveland and Gayle Brosemer of Slidell, La. The bride chose for her wedding a blue and white dress embellished with tiny pink flowers and accented with a white lace V-yoke inset. Mary Wilkenson attended the bride as maid of honor. Richard Kleinschmidt of Waveland was best man. A reception followed the ceremony at the groom's home in Waveland Manor Apartments.

MR. AND MRS. LARRY D. CARTER JR.

Goscinski-Compretta

Our Lady of the Gulf Church in Bay St. Louis was the setting for the March 17 wedding of Amy Lynn Compretta of Bay St. Louis and Stephen Faures Goscinski of Bay St. Louis. Father Peter Mockler officiated at the candlelight ceremony and Nuptial Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Anthony Compretta of Bay St. Louis. The groom is the son of Jane L. Faures of Houston, Texas.

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN F. GOSCINSKI

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Nuptial music was provided by keyboard/pianist Chris Delgatto, pianist Jim Ballard, flutist Dennis Carver, soloist Krista Pope, guitarists and vocalists Tom Ackerman, Mary Ann Becnel and Rich Cichon.

The bride wore a formal gown of pale ivory satin in a traditional style featuring a high collar on a yoke of English net, fitted basque bodice appliqued with schiffli embroidered lace embellished with seed pearls, iridescent sequins and crystals, with long tapered sleeves.

Sheer English net closed with tiny buttons covered the low back which featured a large bow at the waist. The full circular skirt was designed with hand-clipped lace. A lace border formed the hemline and encircled the cathedral train.

Labat to vie for state homecoming title

Tamera Lynn Labat, daughter of Mrs. Pamela Isabelle and Phelt Saucier of Pass Christian has been selected finalist for Mississippi's tenth annual Homecoming Queen selection to be held May 12 and 13 at the Ramada Inn Renaissance in Jackson.

She was the 1988 Bay Senior High School Homecoming Queen.

Mississippi's Homecoming Queen will receive a cash scholarship plus an expense paid trip to compete with queens from other states for America's Homecoming Queen in July in Honolulu, Hawaii. America's Homecoming Queen will receive a cash scholarship plus an expense paid educational trip to Europe.

Queen Inc. is a non-profit organization promoting education and educational travel for high school homecoming queens in all 50 states.

Cochran, Lott announce $41 million 'supercomputer' will be located at Stennis

The Navy has decided to locate a $41 million "supercomputer" at the Naval Oceanographic Office in Hancock County to further the Navy's understanding of the ocean-atmospheric environment, U.S. Senators Trent Lott and Thad Cochran announced.

The lawmakers said the Navy will use the state-of-the-art "supercomputer" to conduct scientific research at the Institute of Naval Oceanography, the Naval Oceanographic and Atmospheric Research Laboratory and the Naval Oceanographic Office—all located at Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

The supercomputer will allow the Navy to more accurately predict oceanographic and atmospheric conditions on spacial scales, ranging from the size of one of the earth's hemispheres down to an area of five or 10 square miles.

It will have the capability of performing millions of complex calculations rapidly—one billion mathematical operations every second—enough to provide a useful, real-time forecast.

"The dependence of the national security of the United States upon the world's oceans is continuously increasing," the Senators said in a joint statement.

"Even in this period of political reform in Eastern Europe, a greater reliance on the part of the Defense Department exists today on the leverage provided by deployed Naval forces utilizing superior technology."

Mississippi's Stennis Space Center is playing an increasingly active role in developing this technology, specifically in the Navy's understanding of the ocean-atmospheric environment. Our Mississippi facility has emerged as the cornerstone of the Navy's oceanography, meteorology and acoustic research and development programs."

Lott and Cochran said 30 new jobs will be created at the Naval Oceanographic Office as a direct result of the location of the supercomputer there and predicted that it will lead to more high tech research and development activity coming to the center.

They said total employment at the center is expected to rise this year from 1,443 to 1,554 workers and to 1,577 in 1991, including the new supercomputer jobs.

The total payroll for the center will increase to $75 million in 1991, while expenditures for operations are expected to total $100 million.

The lawmakers predicted that the experience and technical expertise developed at the Mississippi complex will allow other Navy organizations to transition to supercomputer capabilities and will directly contribute to the sea service's understanding of the environment in which it daily operates.

"At the same time, our Naval Oceanographic Center in Mississippi is expanding physically, academically and operationally in its mission of supporting U.S. Naval forces," Lott and Cochran said.

Annual Pass Christian Garden Club flower show is colorful, informative

CRUISIN'—Heidi Massey of Pass Christian Middle School won first place in the junior high school gardener division for her arrangement called "Cruisin' Down the River."

Traci Bonney

Beautiful displays and informative exhibits sang the "Melodies of the Seasons" at the Pass Christian Garden Club's annual flower show this week.

The show, held Wednesday at the Hancock Bank Civic Center in Pass Christian, consisted of approximately 24 entries, including several from Pass Christian Middle School students.

Ribbons were given in several categories, including creativity, small designs, appreciation, education and junior high gardeners.

The displays weren't the only appealing things at the show. Two tables of refreshments caught the eye and enticed the taste buds.

In addition to flower arrangements, the show had one commercial and two educational displays and 52 horticultural specimens.

Publicity chairman Sarah McCarthy said, "I thought the show was a real success and well attended. The displays were beautifully done."

The show drew approximately 100 visitors to the civic center.

HALLOWEEN DISPLAY—Mrs. A.B. (Gertrude) Brown shows one of the two ribbons she won. She won one in the large designs category for a Halloween arrangement, shown here, and one for a small design.

DESIGN CREATIVITY—Mrs. Marvin L. (Bea) Johnson displays the ribbon she won for creativity in design as she stands next to one of her entries. She also won the Petite Fleur category for miniature designs.

MOST ENTRIES—Mrs. J.W. (Liz) Hedgpeth won the sweepstakes category for the most entries. She won 40 ribbons in all.

Bay High seniors present 'The Jury Room' May 3-4

A bare stage, with nothing more on it than a table and some chairs, becomes the setting for murder, as 12 Bay High School seniors gather at Bay Middle School Auditorium (old high school) on May 3 and 4 to decide the fate of a lovely young girl accused of murder.

The 1990 senior class will present their version of C. B. Gilford's drama "The Jury Room" each night at 7:30 p.m.

Did the young girl stab her uncle in cold blood? Eleven jurors say yes. One, a student actress, (Kathy Carpenter) says no.

"Act out the testimony," she pleads with them, "and see if it looks true." Finally, impatiently, the foreman (Danny Williams) and the other jurors agree.

Furniture is rearranged, and props are brought in, including the real murder weapon. The actress becomes the accused girl. The foreman impersonates the murdered man. All the other jurors act out parts as they replay the events leading up to the murder, and finally the murder itself.

Several jurors, Jackie Odom, Kathy Ginn, Alex Machado and Tammy Bergeron, provide comedy as they try to adjust to being actors for the first time.

Others, Micah Necaise, Thad McIntyre, Danny Williams and Ana Scafidi, take the situation very seriously. Supporting cast members include Cody Thomas, John Pursley and Tammy Ehrlich.

Arguments erupt and tempers flare as the jurors act out the parts of the people involved in the actual murder, all the while trying to decide the guilt or innocence of the accused girl. The jurors begin to lose themselves in their roles.

There's plenty of physical action as the events leading up to the murder and the murder itself are brought to life on the stage. But which version is correct? If the girls did not kill her uncle, who did?

Play-acted murder threatens to become real murder. The verdict, the solution, and the climax of the play arrive together in a single spectacular finish.

Tickets may be purchased at the door. Prices are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Free telephone checkups available to test hearing

BY TRACI BONNEY

Do you think you may have a hearing problem?

Since May is National Better Hearing and Speech Month, now is the time to have your hearing checked, and it's as easy as picking up the telephone.

A free 24-hour three-minute hearing screening test, sponsored by James H. Wold, Ph.D., audiologist and director of Medical Speech and Hearing Services Inc., is available and is conducted entirely over the phone.

Carl Schulz, an audio technician and licensed hearing aid dispenser who works at the Hearing Services center, said anyone suspecting he or she may have a hearing problem should call 864-3686.

"When you call this number you will hear a recorded message. The message will tell you that your hearing will be tested in each ear.

"There will be four tones, at four different frequencies, all at 20 decibels. If you don't hear one of these tones, there may be a hearing problem."

If your house is not quiet enough for the phone checkup, Schulz said, you should call 864-9292 to arrange for a free hearing screening test in a sound-treated test room at the center.

If you have questions about hearing loss or other hearing problems, call for free literature or consultations with members of the center staff through May.

For those who don't want to make a long-distance call to test their hearing, Garden Park Community Hospital, in conjunction with Wold and Dr. Don Roberts, sponsors an over-the-phone hearing test at 467-4001.

The test, like the one given by Medical Speech and Hearing Services Inc., is not to be used as a full hearing evaluation, Schulz said. It is merely a means of determining if there may be a problem and if further evaluation is needed.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Diamondhead Garden Club

The April 18 meeting of the Diamondhead Garden Club was called to order by Brierly Acker in the absence of president Gerri Garberg. The Collect was read by Eileen Zeringue, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance. Betty Cutler introduced guests and attendance.

The secretary's report was read by Elizabeth Steel; the treasurer's report was presented by Virginia Valigorsky.

Committee reports followed; flower show critique by Alice Brainer; Pilgrimage report by Johnnie Boatright; ways and means, Lee Fredian; Earth Day, Jackie Toca. Charlotte Partridge presented horticultural tips for this time of year.

The May 16 meeting will be a salad/dessert luncheon at the Community Center. May 4 is the date announced for the meeting of the Gulf Coast Council of Garden Clubs which will be held at the Gautier Convention Center beginning at 1:30 p.m. Rosemary Baciagale of the Diamondhead Garden Club will be installed as fourth vice-president.

Acker also announced the Spanish Trail District meeting to be held May 29 at the VFW Post in Long Beach. The Diamondhead Garden Club board meeting will be May 2 at 2 p.m.

After comments and discussion regarding the recycling efforts for the Diamondhead Community, the members present adopted the following resolution:

"The Diamondhead Garden Club, as a civic minded organization, hereby resolves to go on record as being extremely disappointed in the reaction of some Diamondhead Community members and the Property Owners Association in delaying the community wide recycling efforts."

Lorraine Alvarez provided the following address for interested persons to have their names taken off "junk mail" lists:

Mail Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, 6 East 43rd Street, New York, NY 10017

Hostesses were Dorothy Jordan and Lorraine Alvarez. Acker expressed the club's appreciation for the atrium landscape improvement prior to the Pilgrimage, which was done by Rose Hobbs with assistance from Borja Landscape Nursery.

Harrison County Extension Agent Freddy Baylis was speaker. Topic was "Common Garden Pests and How to Get Rid of Them." Baylis emphasized the importance of knowing what your garden has in the way of disease, before you try to treat it. He gave out a brochure from the Cooperative Extension Service and answered questions.

Beta Sigma Phi XI Theta Chapter

The monthly meeting of Beta Sigma Phi, XI Theta Chapter of Pass Christian was held on Monday, April 9 at the Hancock Bank Annex.

Opening ritual was conducted followed by the business meeting. There were 11 members present.

Cash donations will be made to the Pass Christian Rotary Club for the doll and toy fund for 1990 and to the Pass Christian Volunteer Fire Department for Christmas lights for 1990.

President, Loretta Ladner was selected as Woman of the Year for the chapter.

Discussed was the scholarship fund for a student at Pass High School. Also plans will be made at a later date for a benefit to be held for the Heart Fund.

Officers for 1990-91 were elected. They are Loretta Ladner, president; Edna Szymanski, vice president; Sis Weston, secretary; and Gerry Bishop, treasurer. Isabel Terrell will serve as extension officer and Mary Davids as corresponding secretary.

After the closing ritual, refreshments were served by hostesses Carrie Allen, Garry Bishop, Leada Niolet and Inez Pogue.

Mary Davids gave a short resume about her recent tour of Europe.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The regular bi-annual veterans' "Bingwich," sponsored by the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 was held on Wednesday, April 25, at the Legion home.

Lucille Boudreaux, chairman, had the prizes on the table tastefully arranged for all to see, and she had picked quite a variety of them.

The ladies from the auxiliary who helped at this party were Margaret Prevou, Oris Planchard, Roslyn Weathers, Elaine Roberts, Pat Gillan, Bobby Tomlinson, Clara Arnold, Genevieve Cole, Hazel Breland, Nell Sanford; Ursula Favre, Beryl Murtagh, Judy Gavney, Hazel Wohlschlegel, Mamie Carver, Anna Brehm, Inez Bouis, Ruby Hogan, Billie Tudury, Beatrice Ladner, Joyce Binet, Lou Wilkerson, Evelyn Burns, Anna Gayaut and Jackie Bufkin.

They brought sandwiches, cupcakes, brownies, pickles and olives, deviled eggs, potato chips and cheetos, gum and candy and carbonated drinks.

The veterans who came were from the "live-in" homes from the area, a few from the Hotel Reed Nursing Center, and those from Gulfport. All in all, there were at least 75 present.

After the bingo game was over, the prizes won, and tables cleared, the ladies served the veterans.

As the veterans were getting ready to leave, each was handed a small bag of candy and gum.

Lou Wilkerson, education chairman, announced Cindy Pitolo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pitolo of Bay St. Louis and a student of OLA, was selected winner of the local American Legion Auxiliary scholarship. Her entry will be sent to the state auxiliary for state competition.

Katie Cuevas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cuevas of Bay St. Louis, a student of Bay High, submitted the winning entry and this too, will be sent to state for competition.

VFW Auxiliary Post 3253

The regular monthly meeting of Theodore Price Ladies Auxiliary was April 11 at the post home.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Jean Lewis.

Chaplain, Mrs. Mamie Carver, read the opening prayer. Mrs. Lewis led the Pledge of Allegiance.

The annual election was conducted for the year 1990-91. Officers elected were Jeannie Garcia, president; Clara Arnold, senior vice president; Mamie Carver, junior vice president; Evelyn Sick, treasurer; Audrey Heyd, secretary; Hazel Wohlschlegel, chaplain; Ursula Favre, conductress; Barbara Kingston, guard; Anna Brehm, three-year trustee; Ruby Hogan, two-year trustee; and Jean Lewis, one-year trustee.

Learning Ladies

The April meeting of the Learning Ladies was opened by Mrs. Charlotte Edwards, president. The Homemaker's Creed was read and the Pledge of Allegiance was recited.

On May 11 the Homemakers will host a Yesteryear Fair at the Bay St. Louis Library from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. This will feature articles from the past.

The Homemaker's Cultural Arts Fair will be held at the Extension Center on Friday, May 18 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

On May 3 at the library, the homemakers are sponsoring a health fair. Screening will include blood pressure, glaucoma and cholesterol testing.

May 14 a latch key program will be presented at the Middle School in Bay St. Louis, and on May 9 the program will be presented at Gulfview Elementary School. The program will also be presented at other schools in the fall.

Mrs. Edwards reported on the Adopt-A-Person program. A lady at Hotel Reed Nursing Home was the recipient of an Easter dress, socks and slippers plus an Easter basket. The lady was very pleasantly surprised and appreciative. The club wishes to thank Julie Cain for her cooperation in this venture.

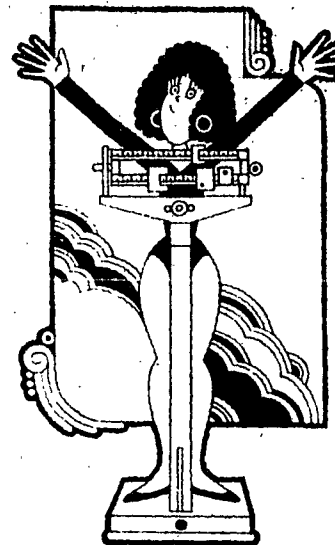

Easter tray favors made by the group were also delivered to the nursing home.

Mrs. Tommie Ziegler and Mrs. Enola Naquin will be hostesses at the May meeting.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Bay-Waveland Garden Club

The general meeting of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club on April 12 was called to order by President Nanette Murphree. The devotion was given by Venda Mae Ladner followed by the Pledge of Allegiance.

The program was a slide presentation by Jean Keen on her visit to England to see one of the famous flower shows in Chelsea. Keen is a past president of the Diamondhead Garden Club, past director of the Spanish Trail District and a nationally accredited flower show judge and landscape critic.

The business meeting opened with the treasurer's report followed by the minutes of the last meeting.

Reports from chairmen of committees were:

Sally Los Caiso is home from the hospital.

Kathleen Kemp sent thanks to all who helped in making the Pilgrimage a great success.

Alice Holmes read a letter from American Waste and Pollution Control enclosing a contribution to the club to help in furthering the efforts in preserving natural resources.

Peggy Gibbons spoke on little brown birds in our area.

Thyla Rogers talked about what her garden means to her and how she relates to nature's ways. She closed with the club's song, "In the Garden," accompanied by Allison Rogers.

Lynn Nybo showed various pieces of dried plant material that can be used in a design for a flower show.

Gardens of the Month Awards went to Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Ford, 324 Hillcrest in Waveland, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ash, 544 Commagere Boulevard in Bay St. Louis.

The chairman of the nominating committee presented the slate of candidates for the May election of officers.

Chairman Bobby Hunter introduced the hostesses, Sharon Kleinpeter, Frances MacDonald, Billie Snider, Lisa Coward, Donna Van Veyckhouse, Olga Skelton, Rose Uram and Mary Werner, who prepared and served the refreshments.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 77

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 77 of Waveland had a very busy week starting April 10. An initiation for new members was held, and 43 members were present in spite of the bad weather. Certificates were awarded to members with five or more continuous years with an auxiliary.

One transfer member has 50 years and another transfer member, Mrs. Edythe Wilhelm, 25 years. Some of the charter members with 20 years also received certificates. Refreshments were served. Thanks were extended to all members who made the event successful.

On Wednesday, April 11, 19 auxiliary members helped the American Legion Post No. 77 by giving of their time to help with a blood drive.

On Thursday, April 12, the Easter Bunny joined other members of the unit to go to the VA Hospital in Gulfport to have an Easter party for the Ward. There were special gifts, candy, ice cream, cake and punch. The members enjoyed this party as much as the patients did.

An Easter egg hunt was held Saturday, April 14 on the Legion grounds in Waveland. Again the Easter Bunny was there to help distribute goodies to the many children who came to the hunt. The gifts given to the children were made possible by donations of the wonderful merchants in Waveland and Bay St. Louis, along with some of auxiliary members' donations.

Auxiliary members and members of the Legion worked together to make almost 200 children happy for a little while. Cake and orange drink were served to all who attended.

Pass Christian Garden Club

The Pass Christian Garden Club held its April 5 meeting at the Hancock Bank Civic Center with Mrs. Philip Ambler and Mrs. Timothy McCarthy serving at the tea table following the meeting.

Mrs. Warren Schultz, president, thanked Mrs. Alfred Abaunza and her committee for making the Pilgrimage such a tremendous success this year. More than 200 people signed the guest books, which were given to each homeowner with a small plaque stating that they had participated in the 1990 Pilgrimage in Pass Christian.

The membership accepted the slate of officers as presented by Mrs. John Drevar, chairman of the nominating committee.

Following are new officers for next year: president, Mrs. Warren Schultz, first vice president, Mrs. P. W. Carter; second vice president, Mrs. Harry Wittmann; recording secretary, Mrs. James A. Waggoner; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Campbell; treasurer, Mrs. Alfred Abaunza; historian, Mrs. John Drevar; parliamentarian, Mrs. Kay Chapman.

Youth group chairman, Mrs. Virgil Giani, advised the club will sponsor one local student to attend a two-day course for young gardeners at Mississippi State University this summer.

Household Hazardous Waste Charts were distributed to all members who were urged to follow the suggestions therein for the disposal of various types of household waste.

The May 3 meeting of the club will be the installation luncheon. Time and place will be announced at a later date.

Kiln VFW Auxiliary 6285

The April 17 meeting of the Kiln Auxiliary to VFW Post 6285 was held at the VFW hall followed by a joint chicken-spaghetti supper with post members.

President Estelle Depreo opened the meeting with 17 members present.

Aloise Shiyon, acting chaplain, read the opening prayer, and the Pledge of Allegiance was recited.

Motion from the floor to dispense with the regular meeting and move ahead with the election of officers for the 1990-91 year was accepted and approved.

Officers elected were Estelle Depreo, president; Aloise Shiyon, senior vice president; Verdille Kilnorr, junior vice president; Bessie Necaie, treasurer; Susie Harmon, chaplain; Mabel Moran, conductress; Mildred Lee, secretary; Nell Sanford, guard; Ethel Necaie, three-year trustee; Myrle Dunhurst, two-year trustee; and Anna M. Cuevas, one-year trustee.

Auxiliary chairmen appointed were, cancer aid and research, Sue Richards; community activities, Luvie Ladner; VFW National Home, Willetta Mauffray; political action report, Lillie Kendrick; hospital and vans, Jackie Moody.

The meeting adjourned with the closing prayer. Next meeting will be May 15 at 7 p.m. at the post home.

The First District Convention will be April 27, 28 and 29 at the Holiday Inn, Hwy. 49 in Gulfport.

Take Off Pounds Sensibly Waveland

TOPS No. 233 Waveland meets every Tuesday at the Waveland Public Library. Weigh-ins are from 6 to 6:45 p.m. with the meeting immediately following.

On Tuesday, April 10, the week's best loser was Denise Burr. On Tuesday, April 17, Burr was the week's best loser again. Charlotte Tartavouille received a charm for losing 50 pounds, and Rose Necaie and Jeannette Necaie received charms for perfect attendance for six months.

The best loser Tuesday, April 24 was Sandy Abson. The club welcomed one new member. Leader Sandy read correspondence about the upcoming Quarterly Area Meeting which will be in Gulfport on Tuesday, May 8.

Persons interested in losing weight the sensible way and maintaining that weight loss, call Sandy at 467-5834 for more information, or visit one of the meetings.

Annunciation Senior Citizens

The senior citizens of Annunciation Parish held their monthly covered-dish luncheon on Wednesday, April 17 at noon.

There were 23 members and guest, Rev. Henry McInerney, present. A delicious buffet, desserts and soft drinks were served and enjoyed by all.

Members celebrating April birthdays were Sandra Edwards and Mabel Moran.

Blood pressures were taken by Edna Harrington, RN.

Following the luncheon, door prizes were awarded and games were played.

Next luncheon will be May 16 in the Parish Center, Kiln. Call the rectory or Estelle Depreo for information.

4th Annual Hancock Salute To Business

Sponsored

Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission
Board of Supervisors and Hancock County

Letter From The Director

1990 marks the fourth year that Hancock County has officially recognized outstanding members of our business and industry community for their contributions to the county's economy and quality of life.

The annual Salute to Business and Industry program provides a means of honoring a small group of companies and individuals for their accomplishments.

But the salute is also designed to commend all of Hancock County's businesses and industries which provide employment for our citizens and a solid economic base for the entire county.

Economic development involves attracting new industries and supporting established businesses, and it requires the continuous efforts of local officials and the citizens of Hancock County to continue to improve our labor supply, educational systems, transportation network and other support services that are directly tied to our economic future.

Hancock County Award of Excellence

Charles Ramsey, founder and president of Bay Technical Associates Inc. in Bay St. Louis, has headed the electronics firm since it opened in 1976.

Under Ramsey's leadership, Bay Tech has grown from three employees to more than 100 and has developed a worldwide customer base by producing high quality products. Ramsey has been honored by the U.S. Government for his company's high level of export sales to customers outside the country.

Charles Ramsey
Bay Technical Associates

Pete Emerling, right, division manager of Bay Tech Data Communications Products Division, accepts award on behalf of Charles Ramsey from Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas.

In addition to his success in the U.S. and world marketplace, Ramsey has made significant contributions to the community as seen in the major renovations and continuing improvements made to Bay Tech's Second Street and Main Street locations.

Chamber Business Of The Year

Diamondhead Supermarket

Diamondhead Super Market opened as an independent Sunflower grocery store in July, 1985 and subsequently joined the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce in January 1986. Its present name was adopted in early 1986.

Howard Hamilton is owner of the store, which employs 30 people and serves as the anchor for Diamondhead Shopping Center.

Diamondhead Super Market actively supports many community activities, including: Providing lunches for Diamondhead Academy; participating in the Adopt-A-School program; giving food to the needy; and contributing to several civic organizations. The manager and staff are always willing to serve the community.

Additional stores were opened this year in Spanish Fort and Mobile, Alabama.

Hancock County Industry Of The Year

Linea Peninsular S.A.

Linea Peninsular S. A. owner David Humphreys is a native Australian who has been involved in the shipping industry since the age of 16. He came to the United States in the late 1960's when he led an expedition to the North Pole.

He purchased his first ship in 1972 and moved his shipping operation from Kings Bay, Ga. to Port Bienville in 1978.

Regular shipping service was begun between Port Bienville and Progreso, Mexico, chartered by Humphreys from Atlas Powder Company. In 1989, Humphreys purchased a larger vessel which he operates under the name Linea Peninsular S. A. (the line that runs to the Yucatan Peninsula).

Merchants to join ranks of 'smoke free' businesses

On May 1, Merchants Bank and Trust Company, and its branch offices, will join the increasing number of businesses which are realizing the beneficial effects of a "smoke free" environment.

Although the employees obtain the greatest benefit, that of better health, the employers also achieve savings through reduced health related absences and decreased health insurance rates.

Guy C. Billups, chairman of the board, feels the bank customers will derive some of the same health benefits that the employees will enjoy. "We want our customers to be able to conduct their business in a clean, healthy environment," he commented.

Merchants Bank joins the ranks of leading Gulf Coast businesses who have demonstrated their concern for the health of their employees and customers, including Gulf Publishing Company and Mississippi Power Company by designating their buildings as "smoke free" zones.

For more information on making your business "smoke free" contact the Harrison County Unit of the American Cancer Society which is located on DeBuys Road in Biloxi.

THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI
TO: HEIRS AT LAW OF BENJAMIN CLAIBORNE HARRELL and LILLIE CUEVAS HARRELL, whose address is unknown after diligent search and inquiry. You have been made a Defendant in the suit filed in this Court by Hollis Benjamin Claiborne Harrell, et al, seeking adjudication of heirs.
Defendants other than you in this action are none. You are required to mail or hand deliver a written response to the complaint filed against you in this action to JOHN C. CHEVIS, JR., Attorney for Plaintiffs, whose address is 125-D Main Street, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, 39520.
Your response must be mailed or delivered not later than thirty days after the 22nd day of April, 1990, which is the date of the first publication of this summons. If your response is not so mailed or delivered, a judgment by default will be entered against you for the money or other relief demanded in the complaint.
You must also file the original of your Response with the Clerk of this Court within a reasonable time afterward.
Issued under my hand and the seal of said Court, this 18th day of April, 1990.

NAACP slates first 'Dollars for Scholars Ball'

The Hancock County Branch of the NAACP will sponsor its first annual "Dollars for Scholars Ball" at the Hancock County Civic Center on Saturday, May 12 from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

Music will be provided by "Freeway." The donation is $10. One of the chapter's main goals this past year has been to increase both the number of dollar amount of the Albert J. Fair-connetue Scholarship offered to local high school seniors.

This year the Hancock branch has met that goal—two scholarships of $1,000 each will be awarded. Applications and the criteria have been available at all local schools from the counselors.

Previous 'Mothers of the Year' will be introduced as special guests as well as the graduates from the various local schools, Bay Senior High, Hancock North Central, Our Lady Academy and St. Stanislaus.

For additional information or purchase of tickets, contact 467-0470 or any member of the NAACP.

CAPITAL RAPE

A capital rape charge against a juvenile was withdrawn and a juvenile was released.

According to Bay St. Louis, Tom Burleson, Devon Wash, Bay St. Louis, had been arrested. The charge was withdrawn.

Capital rape is a possible charge against a female victim.

According to Burleson, a complaint against Wash was filed with perjury. The juvenile was released from Hancock County Youth Court.

MAN INJURED

Two men were arrested this morning following a stabbing incident.

"At approximately 6:07 a.m., a man was stabbed in the back with a weapon at 5th and Main St. Police Detective T. Burleson is investigating the case.

Officers arrived and found a man lying on the ground. He was taken to the hospital and is in critical condition.

He described the spear as a metal point, such as a spear. The man was taken to the hospital and is in critical condition. The man was released.
